Arquivo /etc/mime.types

#
  MIME-TYPES and the extensions that represent them
#
  This file is part of the "mime-support" package. Please send email (not a bug report) to mime-support@packages.debian.org if you would like new types
#
#
  and/or extensions to be added.
#
  The reason that all types are managed by the mime-support package instead
#
  allowing individual packages to install types in much the same way as they add entries in to the mailcap file is so these types can be referenced by other programs (such as a web server) even if the specific support package
#
#
  for that type is not installed.
#
  Users can add their own types if they wish by creating a ".mime.types" file in their home directory. Definitions included there will take precedence over those listed here.
#
  Note: Compression schemes like "gzip", "bzip", and "compress" are not actually "mime-types". They are "encodings" and hence must _not_ have entries in this file to map their extensions. The "mime-type" of an encoded file refers to the type of data that has been encoded, not the type of encoding.
